

Abstract Of The Disclosure

The yaw rate sensor of the present invention has force-conveying means. The central idea of the invention is that the force action conveyed by this arrangement has a frequency such that the frequency of the conveyed force action is an integral multiple of the frequency of the 5 oscillation of the drive element parallel to the X-axis.